

Premature EOT

COPD EXacerbation and Pulmonary hypertension Trial

- The effect of Sildenafil treatment to patients with COPD exacerbation and pulmonary hypertension

This study was planned to consist of an observational and an interventional phase. However, only the observational study was conducted, and the planned interventional part was not carried out. This was due to findings from the observational study indicating that carrying out the interventional part would not be feasible.